TWO LITTLE BREADWINNERS

LENGTH, 530 FEET.

COPYRIGHTED 1908.

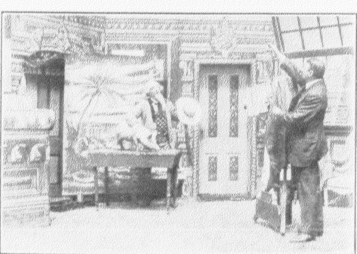

A Fisherman's home is always a happy home, that is as long as the fisherman returns alive. There is sadness in the home of the young wife. She finds the boat wherein her husband went on the fishing trip, upset thrown out by the wild waves. Not long afterwards they find the dead body of the husband. The shock is too much for the young widow, she lays at death's door but is tenderly cared for by the little girl, while her little boy takes the father's boat and goes out to support his mother and sister. A picture full of sentiment and excellent in photography.

HOW RASTUS GOT HIS PORK CHOPS.

LENGTH, 410 FEET.

COPYRIGHTED 1908.

Farmer Pumpkin's pig won the blue ribbon at an exhibition. He went to the photographer's to have his prize pig photographed. Rastus, who intended to have his picture taken takes the pig instead and runs away followed by the photographer and the farmer. Seeing two boys playing masqueraders he takes the pig's head and fastens it over a dog's head. The dog runs away followed by the farmer and a big crowd who think he is the stolen pig. In the meantime Rastus got home to prepare his pork chops. No. 116.
